Fasetto Introduces Forum for Team Sports so Every Athlete Gets a Front Row Seat to Game Plans and Plays

App enables coaches to screen-share game plans to every player's smartphone, tablet or laptop to make teams more engaged and informed on bus trips, in locker rooms and on the sidelines.

SUPERIOR, WI—February 25, 2020—Fasetto creates solutions that accelerates the secure sharing of information and visual media. Forum for Team Sports was created so every athlete gets a front row seat to game plans and plays. The app enables coaches to screen-share game plans to every player's smartphone, tablet or laptop to make teams more engaged and informed on bus trips, in locker rooms and on the sidelines. Forum works without the internet or cables because it creates its own network – effectively turning any space into a team meeting place.

Now, during transportation to the game, coaches can review plays, lineups and strategy. On the return trip, the screen-share feature makes viewing of game footage both immediate and easy.

“We are incredibly excited to see our coaches and athletes using this new software this season. Our Field Manager likes our players focused on the way to the games, and Forum is the perfect fit for on the bus,” says Greg Culver, General Manager of the Duluth Huskies. “Our players will benefit from the ability to easily share analytics and video of their pitching or batting form throughout the season.”

Football players use the software on sidelines at games or at practice. The quarterback reviews plays with teammates and can show footage of the opposing team to study strategy. Personal trainers get a close-up view of what happened when an athlete is injured. Trainers can even have the athlete download physical therapy exercises directly to their own device.
